KYOTOPHONIE is a new music festival showcasing an eclectic selection of music and superb local produce in a curated food experience on the sandy beaches of the picturesque national park of Amanohashidate, Kyoto Prefecture, Japan.

KYOTOPHONIE Borderless Music Festival held its first session in the Spring of 2023, inviting a diverse selection of musicians like Salif Keita, Lucas Santtana, SHOW-GO, Trio SR9, Koki Nakano among others, to perform in some of Kyoto's most magical places, including a Noh Theatre, temples, Japanese gardens and clubs across the city.

Spanning two days, the Autumn edition will be held on October 7-8 at Amanohashidate, in the northern part of Kyoto Prefecture. With 12 artists from 7 countries will be bringing their music on three unique stages that connect to the exceptional natural landscape. Additionally, renowned chefs from France, Tokyo, and Kyoto will use locally sourced ingredients to tailor a special culinary experience. Set against the backdrop of lush nature, which is known to be one of Japan's Three Scenic Views, KYOTOPHONIE will curate an experience that connects borderless music, nature and food.

KYOTOPHONIE is a borderless music festival established as a sister festival of KYOTOGRAPHIE International Photography Festival. The first instalment of KYOTOPHONIE was held in the spring of 2023 in various venues in Kyoto City, welcoming more than 3,000 guests.

This autumn, KYOTOPHONIE will be held on 7-8 October in the natural setting of Amanohashidate, one of Japan's three most scenic spots, facing Miyazu Bay in the north of Kyoto Prefecture. The 'Beach Stage' will be set up with the white sandy beach of Amanohashidate and the horizon as a backdrop, and the 'Forest Stage' will be surrounded by trees that have lived for hundreds of years. Live performances will feature unique musicians from Japan and overseas.

In addition, chefs from France, Tokyo and Kyoto will collaborate to create an 'Pop Up Beach Restaurant,' a one-day-only menu using an abundance of seafood and mountain produce from the northern Kyoto area, in collaboration with local producers. Visitors can also enjoy food attractions such as a food marché with a line-up of kitchen cars from renowned restaurants around the area. The festival offers the opportunity to experience an excellent selection of international and Japanese performers paired with diverse culinary options set in the national park's natural beauty. KYOTOPHONIE wants to share these unique experiences with you.
